

New Rules The rule of six -from Boris Johnson

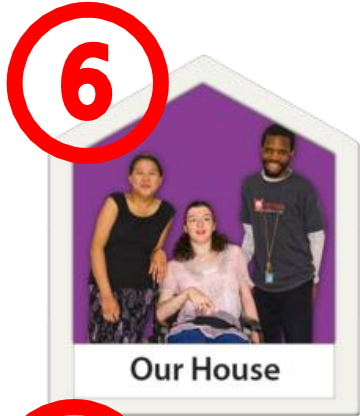

The Prime Minister Boris Johnson said there are new rules about meeting people he called it 'the rule of six'.

This is about no more than six people being together in a group inside or outside of your home.

He said the rules were changing to make them easier for people to understand.

From Monday 14th September 2020 the new rules are

- You can meet with up to six people inside your home.
- You can meet with up to six people inside their home.
- You can meet with up to six people outside your home in places like parks, cafes, pubs, restaurants.

If you break the rules you can be fined £100.

If you keep breaking the rules you can be fined more money each time you break the rules.

Where there can be more than 6 people

If you have more than six people living in your home or your support bubble is more than six people.

Then you can still meet up inside or outside of your home.

Schools and places that people work do not have to follow the rule about six people.
