

Let's look at... Health Passports

If you go into hospital there are lots of different staff that might give you care.

It is important for them to know how to get it right for you.

You can use a health passport to tell staff about how to care for you.

You can also use the passport if you go to other health services.

You can take the passport with you to hospital.

It can be put at the end of your hospital bed for staff to see.

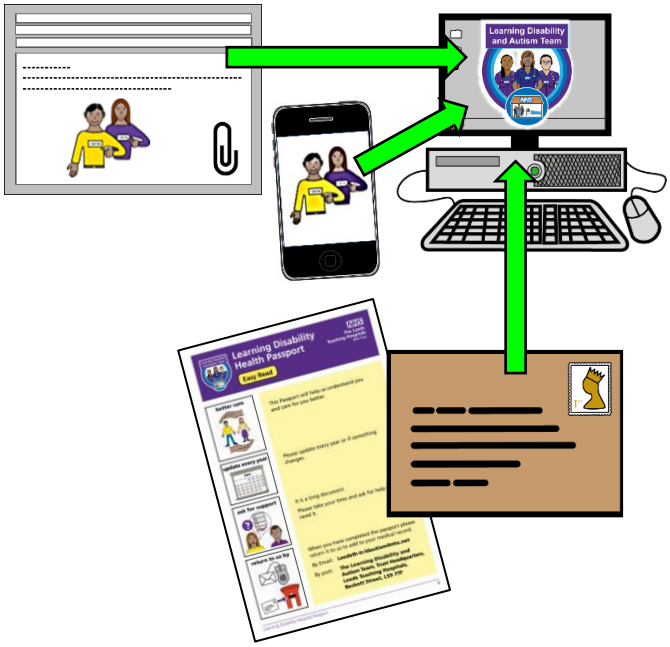

But some staff will look at your information on a computer.

This means they might miss the hospital passport at the end of your bed.

You can send your health passport to the hospital Learning Disability and Autism Team.

They can put the information on the computer so staff will see it.

Email your passport to:
leeds-tr.ldautism@nhs.net

You can fill in the passport on a computer or take photos of a paper copy.

Or you can post the passport:
Learning Disability & Autism Team
2nd Floor, Trust Headquarters
St James's University Hospital
Beckett Street
Leeds
LS9 7TF
